The Pathways Journey

Support and Assistance

As part of our Employment Solutions offer, the Employment Support Officers are a leading factor in helping our customers to overcome barriers.

- Health
Physical and mental health, offering advice and guidance on options available to get external support.
- Substance Use
Providing support including connections to local organisations.
- Financial and Debt
Assisting with Policy and Practice calculations, budgeting advice, and again connecting to external organisations to provide wrap around support. Giving advice and guidance around debt.
- Childcare
Looking at entitlements, making customers aware of their rights and requirements to support them into employment.
- Benefits
Helping customers with Universal Credit queries and ensuring customers on the correct benefits.#
- Housing
Providing information and advice on housing situations, supporting potential new council residents and those not registered.

Use of Policy and Practice

- In Employment Support we use the Policy in Practice Calculator in many different ways to help support our customers.
- It has been utilised to check customers are receiving the correct benefits before providing them with the advice on guidance of how to claim.
- We use it as a motivational tool to show how much better off in employment customers will be, this has been invaluable in apprenticeships and the Kickstart scheme where more consideration on wages are required.
- The income and expenditure tool has been key to identifying other barriers such as health and wellbeing i.e. smoking and alcohol use and financial i.e. gambling and debts.
- All customers entering employment complete the calculation to help them manage with the transition from benefits.

Devastating Results of the Pandemic

Case Studies

Customer is looking at a full-time employment opportunity.

She is a single parent, with a 2 year old child.

She will need full time childcare, as she has no family or friends who can help out.

However, she is concerned that the level of salary would mean that she wouldn't qualify for Universal Credit, and then she would be much worse off.

If she doesn't qualify for a UC award, she won't be able to claim enough to cover her childcare costs, as Tax Free childcare only covers up to £2000 per year. Her costs would be greater than this.

The calculator was used to input the exact annual salary details, with 40 hours of childcare, using the average cost suggested by Policy in Practice.

The results showed the customer that she would qualify for a UC award of £645.29 per month. The customer found this difficult to understand as she considered the payment for childcare as something separate to the UC award.

So to help her understand how it was calculated, I completed another assessment, this time not inputting any childcare costs, but using just the salary details, to show her the basic UC amount she would qualify for.

She was then able to see that she would qualify for a very small amount of UC, £7.94 per month, which meant that she could claim the 85% of childcare costs through UC.

The two breakdowns were emailed to her, for her to refer to.

Note: the final caveat to this case study, is that the customer was advised to take the results to her work coach for them to double check, and also to highlight to her that the salary is likely to increase in April, which would mean that she may get pushed over the UC award threshold.

Kickstart opportunities are available to our 18-24 year old customers.

With this group, we will be undertaking basic better off calculations, to demonstrate how much better off they will be if they take up an offer of a placement.

Depending on their age, they will usually qualify for the NMW rate for their age group, unless the employer chooses to pay more.

We will use the calculator to show them how the calculation is arrived at for their Universal Credit award.

And then to compare, we will do another calculation to show the increase in their income.

In the example below, we have assumed that the customer is living with their parents, and does not have any housing costs.

Pathways So Far.....

- Since the expansion of the team in October 2020 we have supported 136 customers.
- 20 of those customers are now in employment.
- 35 of those customers have now upskilled and gained qualifications through training.
- The programme has seen big increases in terms of referrals and successes since the start of 2021 and we are looking forward to many more throughout the year.
- We are proud to say that we are making a real difference to the lives of people in Rotherham.
